

IMA files complaint against self-proclaimed doctor for unscientific treatment of serious ailments

The IMA sought a ban on Chowdhury's website, book and videos besides registering a criminal case against him for spreading irrational, unprovable and misleading information to treat serious diseases.

Published: 17th November 2021 10:02 AM | Last Updated: 17th November 2021 10:02 AM  | A+ A A-

Representational image.

By Ejaz Kaiser

Express News Service

RAIPUR: The Chhattisgarh unit of the Indian Medical Association (IMA) lodged a police complaint seeking a ban on the web portal, videos and book of self-proclaimed doctor Biswaroop Roy Chowdhary who allegedly resorts to unscientific and risky treatments for serious diseases, particularly kidney-related ailments.

The IMA doctors asserted that Chowdhary has been propagating his unfounded, self-conceived, misleading ideas through his website and a book to treat patients suffering from critical illnesses and the patients undergoing dialysis.

“He considers himself an expert on various chronic illnesses and cites cases of those recovered. We are apprehensive that such make-believe, unprofessional and unscientific practices might further aggravate the problems of the persons suffering from serious illnesses and may divert them from proper treatment”, said the team of IMA doctors— Dr Lalit Shah, Dr Mahesh Sinha, Dr Rakesh Gupta, Dr Asha Jain, who lodged the complaint at Raipur civil lines police station.

Advertisement

The IMA sought a ban on his website, book and other videos besides registering a criminal case against Chowdhary for spreading irrational, unprovable and misleading information to treat serious diseases.

INTERVIEW | 'BJP will win more seats in 2024
Lok Sabha elections':
Defence Minister
Rajnath Singh

Gang-rape in MP: BJP Datia unit assures of action if victim names
party functionary's son as accused

Congress reaching out to minority, backward communities with eye
on Lok Sabha polls

Women still m IITs, efforts or achieve gende balance: First IIT director

Now we are on Telegram too. Follow us for updates

TAGS Indian Medical Association Chhattisgarh IMA Biswaroop Roy Chowdhary Medical malpractice Raipur police station
